

Stack Family Tree

By Michael F. McGraw, Ph.D.
Revised December 13, 2017

This is a picture of Margaret Stack and her children. Mary Stack died at age 6, in 1888 so she can not be the young girl in this picture. The young girl above is about ten years old. The only daughter left was Theresa who was born in 1885. If she was 10 in this picture then the picture was taken in about 1895. At that time Margaret's children were Richard (18), William (17), Edward (13), Theresa (10) and Bernard (8). The boys in the picture are too young to be either Richard or William. Therefore the boys in the picture are Edward, behind his mother and Bernard on the far right. In 1895 the family was living at 723 East Adams St., Syracuse, NY.

There is a solid connection between Sarah Ferguson Stevenson of Collamer and Samuel Ferguson of North Syracuse.

“Mrs. A. M. Stevenson will reside at North Syracuse for some time, with her brother, Samuel Ferguson, whose wife died recently.” “Neighborhood News,” The Syracuse Journal, Syracuse, NY, June 5, 1890.

“Mrs. Sarah Stevenson of Collamer, is spending a few days with her brother in-law, Mr. Samuel Ferguson.” – “North Syracuse” The Daily Journal, Syracuse, NY, March 18, 1897. The “in-law” portion is obviously in error.

The 1850 census ties Roxy to some of the Fergusons in the James C. Ferguson list, which is a very solid link. In the table above I have attempted to merge all this information together. I have moved David higher up to #3. He might not have existed. James Ferguson listed him with no supporting information and he didn’t show up in any of the census information. If he existed at all he would have had to be older and moved out or died before 1850. I have included an unknown sibling to fill out the family to cover the 8 children found in the 1840 census. The birth dates for David and the UnSib are just place holders for approximate dates.

#2 – John Ferguson

“David's son, John (b. 1822) moved to North Syracuse in between 1855 and 1862. Letters between John and Samuel refer to an uncle John Ferguson who died in Washington Co in January 1853. The family name changes to Ferguson on David's tombstone.”

“I'm looking for ancestors or relatives of my g-g-g grandfather, David, who was born in Washington County, NY in 1799 and moved to Centerville (North Syracuse) in Onondaga County, NY with my g-g grandfather Samuel Ferguson about 1826. David was the second child of a family of nine. Most of the family settled in West Hebron, NY, possibly on Ferguson Road. Family letters mention that a John W., David, Jim, and John (b. 1822) all lived on the same road.”

Taken together these two paragraphs imply that 4-year old John Ferguson was left behind when the family moved to North Syracuse in 1826. He sounds more like a cousin that followed the family later. James C. Ferguson, who constructed that original Ferguson Family Tree, even speculated that John was “possibly son of Mary Ann Wilson who is buried in W. Hebron.” That might well be true. However, Ferguson then had to give David Ferguson a 2nd wife to be able to patch John into the family.

Large gap between John and Sarah – 8 years. If John is really a cousin then the gap between Samuel and Sarah is 11 years. There could be missing children that died young or married and possibly left the Onondaga Co. area.

#6 Ellis / Elsie Ferguson could she be a Helen?

Erastus and Roxy Cowen were living with the Jesse Randell family in Cicero at the time of the 1860 census. A possibility is that Jesse's wife was their daughter. The name doesn't match but the age is close.

“The Taft Settlement Cemetery, Taft Rd., N. Syracuse, 2 miles east of Route 11 on north side of road Town of Cicero, New York, Submitted by Ruth Sweeting

“Sources: photocopied from ‘Onondaga Cemetery Inscriptions’ by Edith Hall at Onondaga Co. Public Library, files of Elet Milton at Brewerton Library, and my own (Ruth Sweeting) headstone readings.”

Randell, Jesse M. 1834-1901

Randell, Helen M. Borst 1836-1922, w/o Jesse M.

Randell, Ella Etta d. 30 Oct. 1862, 2y 2m, d/o Jesse M. & Helen

Jesse Randell's wife's maiden name was BORST. Therefore Erastus and Roxy Cowen were not staying with their son-in-law in the 1860 census.

#8 James Ferguson could successfully be traced down through the years. James was born in April 1837 and his father David had died October 25, 1836. That matches up alright. James' son Frank was a real drunk. Frank's own wife had him arrested at least twice for public intoxication for which he served 60 days each time in the penitentiary. In 1908 his kids sent him to the county home where he stayed for 14 years and where he died in 1922.

James Ferguson and Julia/Maria LNU

(s/o David Ferguson and Roxy Ann Smith)

Washington Town was a carpenter by trade. In 1880 while working on the plank road Washington fell from a load of hay and sustained internal injuries. Two years later while using a buzz saw in a shop on West Street he cut three fingers off his left hand.

Eva W. Ferguson Smith was living at 431 Rich St in 1920. She was Mabel Vincett Stack's second cousin. Bernard and Mabel Stack were living at 512 Rich St at the same time. I wonder if they knew each other.

1860 Map of Cicero, NY, from the Onondaga County Atlas. The Cicero Swamp is just off to the east. The names around E. Cowan on the map don't match up with those found in the 1860 census. This is odd. This kind of mobility is expected from census to census but never in a map and census from the same year. Erastus Cowen's farm is just below the northern boundary of Lot 81 on what is now Thompson Road. A person named A. Cowan on Totman Road just across from Erastus might be a relative.

1860 map of the Erastus Cowen farm in the town of Cicero, just east of Centerville (North Syracuse). The north-south road passing to the right of number “93” is now Totman Road. The parallel road just to the west, is now Thompson Road. The long east-west road along the bottom of the map is Taft Road. The cemetery, located before where Taft Road turns south, is Taft Settlement Cemetery. David Ferguson is buried there.
